

Creekside High School is excited to announce that Joe Soto will be the Knights' new Head Girls Soccer Coach.

Coach Soto has been coaching for over 20 years and has coached from recreational to collegiate at all levels. He spent much of his time coaching in northern New Jersey, where he started working with his local recreation program. He went on to coach at the club level, and for over 13 years, has coached girls and boys teams.

Coach Soto brings extensive experience coaching at the interscholastic level. He spent seven years coaching girls' high school soccer programs and three years coaching women's college soccer at his alma mater, St. Peters College (NCAA D1).

Since relocating to Florida, six years ago, Coach Soto has been a Director of Coaching for Florida Elite. Most recently, he was an assistant coach for Bartram Trail High School's girls' team. During that time, the team won three conference championships, five district championships, four regional championships, and two back-to-back Class 7A State Championships.

Coach Soto currently resides in Saint Johns, Florida, with his wife, Sianna, and their two children Caelen, 11, and Kaia, 9. He is extremely excited to work with the team and looks forward to sharing his passion for the game as part of the Creekside Girls Soccer Program.
