The screenshot shows a web interface for submitting a paper. At the top, there are navigation tabs: "Class Portfolio", "Peer Review", "My Grades", "Discussion", and "Calendar". Below these, it says "NOW VIEWING: HOME > TEST CLASS #1". The main content area is titled "Submit Paper: Cut & Paste" and includes a "STEP" indicator with a filled circle. The form contains the following fields:

- First name: A text box containing "Creekside".
- Last name: A text box containing "Student".
- Submission title: A text box containing "What is Democracy".
- Cut and paste your paper: A large text area containing the following text:

in which the supreme power lies in a body of citizens who are entitled to vote for officers and representatives responsible to them" — we are that. A common definition of "democracy" is, "Government by the people, exercised either directly or through elected representatives" — we are that, too.

The United States is not a direct democracy, in the sense of a country in which laws (and other government decisions) are made predominantly by majority vote. Some lawmaking is done this way, on the state and local levels, but it's only a tiny fraction of all lawmaking. But we are a representative democracy, which is a form of democracy.
